MERCHANTS WORK FOR CITY ADVANCE

In the discussion of the progress of Daly City which has appeared in these columns during the past few weeks, passing reference has been made to the concerted efforts of the Daly City merchants. On this occasion a brief review of the advance and development of business may be profitably undertaken.

Pioneers are necessarily alert and resourceful and it is not at all surprising that we should discover in the annals of the city record of the establishment of a Board of Trade within a short period after the first settlers took up their abode in this vicinity. The first few merchants of the new community banded themselves together in such an organization. Their announced intention was to promote the interests of local business by united publicity and by persistent exhortations to the people to do their trading where they had made their homes. We might quote the quaint words of one of the pioneer merchants who asserted: "We must all stick together and do what we can to encourage this movement for better business."

The Board of Trade functioned until the outbreak of the World war, when with the intrusion of tremendous outside problems and national excitement, its activities declined and the organization was abandoned. From 1917 to 1923 the merchants of Daly City continued to hold an annual outing and picnic, making arrangements for which required several meetings and the appointment of various committees. During this period, however, the picnic was the only activity undertaken by the merchants as a body. It would appear that the maintenance of the annual outing was the only connecting link between the original Board of Trade and the Daly City Merchants' Association as it exists today.

On Tuesday, October 30, 1923, a meeting was called at the City Hall for the purpose of organizing a Merchants' Association. There was a gratifying attendance of business and professional men, for the city had been thoroughly canvassed. The first officers were elected, men chosen from the ranks of our civic leaders, and a membership drive was instituted. It is most significant to note that the first official act of the association was the unanimous endorsement of an approaching water bond election. Mayor H. H. Smith had previously made a clear and concise statement on the subject of the water system and the necessity for the bonds. This first action of the newly formed association is illustrative of the fine spirit of co-operation which has existed throughout the years between the organized merchants and our officials at the City Hall. It might be mentioned that the names of two members of our present City Council were found on the first committee appointed by the Association.

During the last eight years the Association has continued its operations without interruption. The majority of our local business men have identified themselves with its activities. The organization has been characterized by a foresight and breadth of vision which have been manifested in publicity efforts of considerable magnitude. All departments of civic life and all phases of community development have received the attention of this representative body of business men. Through local channels and through the broader medium of metropolitan dailies they have emblazoned the story of Daly City's opportunities across the pages of state history in a style which compels conviction. Satisfied that they were living in a good city, they told the world about it. By every means they could conceive they sought to dismiss limited and provincial conceptions from the minds of the people with regard to their own community.

As the years moved on new enterprises made their appearance in the city. More pretentious and better equipped stores were constructed. New and more varied lines of merchandise were introduced, with the result that our present day residents have no need to leave their own city to do their buying. Our merchants have kept step with the progress of the city. They have carefully studied the laws of price and demand and are able to hold their own in face of any competition. Their dream of commercial development has been strikingly realized and an attractive business section, comprising all branches of mercantile enterprise, extends for almost two miles along the great highway which traverses the center of our city.

Daly City merchants have repeatedly proved that they are all for progress. The review of their hearty support and endorsement of all municipal and educational projects makes

COUNCIL MEETING MONDAY EVENING

The regular meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening, February 8.

A communication was received from H. Kasser, requesting the painting of a sign "No Parking" on the curb in front of his place of business, and the request was granted.

The report of the Board of Fire Commissioners showed Mr. Junker no longer a member of Station No. 2, and A. J. Cagger a member of Station No. 6.

The ordinance committee's report on an application for a coal dealer's license at 5945 Mission street showed the location to be in San Francisco, and the applicant was so advised.

Mayor Smith reported a trip to Sacramento, in company with Supervisor Hickey, attending the State Highway Commission meeting, on January 29, and told of their success in securing an appropriation of an additional $25,000 toward the Mission street widening.

The Library committee reported that over 3,000 books were circulated last month.

The poundmaster's monthly report was read and ordered filed.

The next regular meeting night, February 22, being a holiday, the meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, February 23.

VETERAN FIREMEN ADD NEW MEMBERS

The regular monthly meeting of the Veteran Firemen's Association of Daly City was held Friday evening, February 5, at the Veteran Firemen's Hall. The new President, Comrade Andy Chesney, conducted the meeting. The board of directors reported everything in readiness for the sixth annual banquet, which was to take place on Saturday evening, February 6, in the Eagles Hall.

The following new members were initiated: M. M. Grady, Albert Cilicani, J. L. Casey, Peter Benassini, and E. J. Graziani. These firemen formerly served in the Colma Fire Department, but are now members of Company No. 6, Daly City Fire Department.

Under the good of the order the uniformed rank of the Association gave an exhibition drill and fully proved to their audience that the old adage, "You can't teach an old dog new tricks," is all wrong. It can be done.

After the closing of the business session the usual refreshments were served by the new chef, Comrade Bill Goldkuhl.

EAGLES LADIES' NIGHT A DECIDED SUCCESS

A large crowd, which filled the Daly City Auditorium to capacity, attended the quarterly Eagles' dance, Saturday, February 6. The music was furnished by an organization of ten jazz artists, known as the Tanforan Teasing Tunesters. These boys, with their snappy jockey uniforms, surely deserve a vote of thanks from all who attended for the manner in which the teasing dance numbers were played. Let us hope that we will again have the opportunity to dance to their music.

The idea of these popular dances was conceived by George Connolly, the president of the local Aerie, and the members and their friends say: "Give us more dances, George."

BOARD APPROVES AN UNEMPLOYMENT FUND

At their meeting last Monday the San Mateo county board of supervisors granted $1,000 for organization of the San Mateo county committee on unemployment, under the direction of Captain E. J. McCauley, associated with President Hoover's emergency committee, who will serve without remuneration.

The $1,000 appropriated will be used in perfecting a headquarters organization for the relief drive to follow. It will be the function of this organization to use every effort in securing work and aid for San Mateo county residents who are now jobless and needy.

The sum of $5,000 was appropriated for repaving Fifth avenue in San Mateo from El Camino Real to the Bayshore highway.

A resolution prohibiting the transaction by the supervisors of any but emergency business on claims day was adopted. Claims day was designated officially as the second Monday of every month.

Bids were asked for the repair of the Sawyer camp road near San Andreas dam.

P. T. A. OBSERVES FOUNDERS' DAY

The regular meeting of the Woodrow-Wilson-Vista Grande Parent-Teachers' Association will be held next Tuesday afternoon at the Woodrow Wilson school, at 2:30 o'clock. There will be a special Founders' day program. At the same time there will be presented a life membership certificate to a worthy member of the Parent-Teachers' Association. The money derived from the purchase of these life membership certificates forms a fund from which students in college may borrow without cost of interest. Every one is invited to attend this meeting.

On Wednesday afternoon there will be a whist held at the home of Mrs. Grace Hill, 59 Miriam street, at 2 o'clock. Everyone is invited.

On Saturday night, February 20, at 8:30 o'clock, there will be a public dance given by the Association at Eagles' Hall. This is to be an old fashion barn dance. "Doc" Callen and his hay-wire orchestra will play. Everyone is promised a good time. Wear your old clothes.

Last Friday afternoon the executive board met at the home of Mrs. Eva Page. Final arrangements were made for both the Founders' day program and the barn dance. Later refreshments were served. Those present were Mr. M. Woodside, Mrs. C. Foreman, Mrs. M. Hanselman, Mrs. G. Talmadge, Mrs. G. Hill, Mrs. I. Forrest and Mrs. E. Page.

DALY CITY EAGLES INITIATE LARGE CLASS

On February 4, a fine class of eighteen new members was initiated into Aerie No. 1848, Fraternal Order of Eagles. George Connolly, the popular president of the Aerie, made splendid arrangements for an impressive ceremony, which was put on by the officers and degree team of Aerie No. 61 of San Francisco.

Veteran buttons were presented to three members, who have served the Aerie for twenty years. An exceptionally large number of members attended the meeting. After the meeting closed a buffet lunch was served.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR VALENTINE PARTY

On Friday evening, February 12, Grace Presbyterian young people will give a Valentine party for the benefit of the younger members and friends of the church. Those in charge promise a very interesting program. The committee in charge is as follows: Miss Mildred Swan, Ruth Smith, Blodwin Hart.

Annual Rabbit Drive at Orland
Hundreds of sportsmen are planning to gather in the Capay district, near Orland, tomorrow, for the annual rabbit drive. The rabbits are reported to be so numerous that they have become a menace to crop growers. It is expected that thousands of them will be killed. The money derived from their hides will be used for Boy Scout work.

SIRE AND PROGENY RUN AT TANFORAN

Two year olds by the well known Hey Diddle Diddle are being given their primary education as racers and probably will be seen under colors at the spring meeting at Tanforan. Hey Diddle Diddle is a fast horse and in all likelihood will transmit that possession of "foot" to his offspring. When he has turned on for fair track records have gone glimmering.

Novelties are appreciated on the race course as well as in other phases of sport, so the possibility of "Hey" meeting his own sons or daughters in a contest is already provoking some talk down at San Bruno. After being placed in the breeding paddock three years ago (then a three year old) the thoroughbred with nursery rhyme moniker was put back in training. He was winner of a handicap at Tanforan at the last meet.

Fans recall that the old time favorite mare, Aunt Polly, "hooked up" with a daughter, or perhaps a son, when she was pretty well along in years and did some good stepping alongside her produce.

Hey Diddle Diddle was brought over from England by "Pete" Towne and later passed to the ownership of Don Cameron, in whose colors he now races. Of the "cursed" Blacklock line on top, similarly to Galopin and other great ones, and from Mrs. Witch, daughter of Cyllene, sire of four winners of the Epsom Derby, "Hey" was picked out by Towne and his friend, Clarence Hailey, as the most promising kind of a stock horse.

Justina's brother is attracting quite a bit of attention at Tanforan. This baby is in the John W. Marchbank string, home-breds from Heather Farm. Trainer H. W. Hoag plans to have some of the youngsters keyed up for the spring meet, perhaps the one discriminating critics have made their "pick" among them.

The two year old is by King Heather, a product of the Walnut Creek nursery, and from Lady Julian, which also first saw the light of day at the Contra Costa county place. Having bred the sire and dam no wonder the owner takes much pride in their son.

Justina has been a clever performer for three seasons, winning at distances up to one mile and a sixteenth, and on fast track, muddy or heavy. He is a typical example of the durability of King Heathers.

Peter B. Kyne is hopeful of winning many "heats" with his horses being saddled by T. Garnett Ferguson, who is now in charge of their conditioning at Tanforan. "Garney" Ferguson is a thorough horsemaster and had such a high class runner as Bearcatcher in the old days. The "Bear" was a champion in his time.

Burglars Active in San Jose
San Jose police were kept busy by burglars during the month of January, records on file at the city hall show. Twenty persons were arrested on burglary charges, as compared with but one for January, 1931. The total number of arrests also gained during the month, there being 1,058 arrests made, compared with 895 in January last year.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL NOTES OF INTEREST

Last week, on the night of February 2, the Woodrow Wilson school was entered and there was some damage done to papers and books. Some articles were stolen, also a few cents in change.

The various schools have been broken into from time to time, and nothing has ever been done about it. This time the authorities are making an earnest effort to find out who the guilty persons are. Mr. Crane, district superintendent, has posted a reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties, and $10 for the return of the stolen articles.

The rains of last week kept the boys of the different schools from having their usual Friday games. Two games are scheduled for this week, providing the weather is favorable, Woodrow Wilson vs. Jefferson, and Jefferson vs. Crocker.

The teachers and children of the General Pershing school are using the projector in their school work, and are enjoying it very much.

Next week all grades from the Fourth to the Eighth will begin work on posters under the direction and leadership of Miss Nilsen. These posters are to be entered in a contest sponsored by the Parent-Teachers' Association. The following activities are suggested: Health Projects, Wise Use of Leisure, Boys and Girls, Nutrition, Recreation, Book Week, Patriotism, Special Days, School Entertainment, Humane Subjects, Community Chest, etc. A prize will be given for the best poster.

CROCKER P. T. A. HAS SPLENDID PROGRAM

The regular meeting of the Crocker Parent-Teachers' Association was held at 12 Wellington avenue last Tuesday evening, with the President, Mrs. Ethel Bolger, as the presiding officer.

Mrs. Julia Jordan, the Founders' day, chairman, arranged a splendid program to celebrate Founders' day, the third birthday of the Association and Fathers' night.

After the regular business meeting the program chairman took charge. The program consisted of a piano solo by Jane Reiman; a saxophone solo by Evelyn Walker; reading on Founders' day and its meaning, by the secretary, Mrs. Orville D. Pauw. Mrs. Ivey Alexander, of Oakland, the first president of Crocker, greeted the group and wished them success and many more such birthdays.

Mr. R. L. Crane, district superintendent of schools, gave an interesting talk on George Washington and a fine reading on his life.

The meeting was then turned back to the president. The members were told by her that a new P. T. A. had been organized in Brisbane that very day. Brisbane is also in the Seventeenth district.

Next month the nominating committee will be chosen, so a large attendance is urged.

The meeting was adjourned to partake of dainty refreshments served at a prettily decorated table. Lovely acacia blossoms were in baskets everywhere in the club rooms, which have just recently been painted. The group donated $10 to the Welfare Board, to aid them in buying boys' clothing. Two dollars and fifty cents was the Founders' day gift from the Association. Fathers complained that Founders' day didn't come often enough. All present had a most enjoyable evening.

ANOTHER DALY CITY PIONEER ANSWERS FINAL SUMMONS

Last Saturday morning about 9 o'clock Edward O'Connor, of Bellevue avenue, passed away in Mary's Help hospital, after a short illness. He leaves a beloved wife, Christine O'Connor, and a brother, William O'Connor, of Los Angeles, to mourn his passing, besides a host of friends in Daly City, where he had been a resident for the past twenty-five years. Mr. O'Connor was a member of Knights of Columbus, Daly City Council No. 2712, Colma-Vista Grande Aerie of Eagles, No. 1848, Veteran Firemen's Association of Daly City, and Bakers' Union Local No. 24.

The officers and members of the Colma-Vista Grande Aerie of Eagles held services in the W. C. Lasswell mortuary chapel on Monday evening at 8:15. That same evening the members of the Knights of Columbus of Daly City Council No. 2712 met in the chapel to recite the rosary for their departed member. The funeral was conducted last Tuesday morning at 9:15 o'clock from Lasswell's, thence to Our Lady of Perpetual Help church, where mass was celebrated at 9:30 for the repose of his soul. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery.

BOY SCOUTS ENJOY RALLY PROGRAM

Last Monday evening was a big night for the local Boy Scouts. A rally sponsored by District No. 8 and District No. 11 (Daly City), was held in the auditorium of the Balboa high school. A large gathering of Boy Scouts and their parents attended this event, during which the presentation of "Washington's Dream at Valley Forge," written and directed by Scout Executive Raymond O. Hanson, was given. This is a very impressive play and tends to link the boy-life of Washington with the present day ethics of Scouting. It was brought out during the play that George Washington had compiled a set of written rules by which his life would be governed and prove to be similar to those now in use by the Boy Scouts.

Mayor H. H. Smith, Councilman Arthur J. Bodien and District Commissioner L. W. Johnston attended the district rally held in the Everett Junior high school, Tuesday evening, February 9. Mayor Smith stated that he was very much impressed with the manner in which the Boy Scout movement is being conducted in this district, and expressed his willingness to give his whole-hearted support to any activity sponsored by the District Council.

The next meeting of the District Council will be held in the City Hall, Wednesday evening, February 17, at 8 o'clock. Councilman Arthur J. Bodien, chairman of the committee, announces that there will be many important matters to be discussed, and requests that all members of the District Council endeavor to be present at this meeting. A communication has been directed to the Daly City Fire Department, Company No. 6, of Colma, asking them to participate in the Scout movement, and it is expected that they will have their representatives present at this meeting to sit in with our local Council.

LEGION MEMBERS HAVE BUSY WEEK

A large group of members of Daly City Post No. 410 of the American Legion attended the whist party, last Friday night, given by the Daly City Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary. It speaks highly for the mutual co-operation existing between the Post and the Unit.

Commander Jack Mockler and Comrades Crane and Prizbrowski attended the meeting of the San Mateo County Council, held at Redwood City, last Friday night, a report of which will be heard at tonight's meeting.

Last Saturday night proved to be a busy night for several members of the Post, accompanied by their wives. Their first stop was at Burlingame, where they played whist with the members of the San Mateo County Voiture of the 40 and 8, after which they drove to South San Francisco, where they danced and made merry with the Legion folks of South City until the wee sma' hours of the morning.

Let's go over the top with the American Legion, Daly City Post No. 410, on Monday evening, February 15, at zero hour, 8:30. Objective, Greater Mission Post, Twenty-second and Capp streets, San Francisco. Yes, "Doc" and his gang are all pepped up and ready to go over with the boys (and the ladies). So for a night of enjoyment and lots to eat, come one and all, and let them know that Daly City Post No. 410 knows how. "Don't forget."

Daly City Post No. 410 meets tonight, Friday, February 12, at Eagles Hall, where all Legionnaires are made to feel at home. There is still time to bring that new member.

Veterans seeking examination for hospitalization may report to the nearest regional office of the Veterans' Administration at any time, bringing his discharge to prove eligibility for same, and if considered a medical emergency will be immediately hospitalized; otherwise, their names will be placed on a waiting list and they will be admitted in their turn.

LE BARON SMITH IN GRACE CHURCH

Sunday evening, in the 7:45 o'clock service, Mr. Le Baron Smith, a unique San Francisco figure, will speak in Grace Presbyterian church. Mr. Smith was converted in a remarkable manner during the great fire and earthquake. He is an interesting speaker. In the morning service Rev. John R. Stevenson will speak on "God's Jewels." Mr. George Goerke will be the soloist in the service.

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

Members of the San Bernardino Cow Testing Association have re-elected H. W. Root, local dairyman, president, at the annual meeting in American Legion Hall at Chino.

Theodore J. Roche, San Francisco attorney and police commission president, will assume directorship of the State motor vehicle department at the end of February, Governor Rolph has announced.

Reversing an attitude of opposition held for more than six months, the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors granted San Francisco permission to erect the new county jail on the Sneath Ranch, San Mateo County.

Upon the request of Governor Rolph the directors of the California State Fair have designated September 7 as Farm Day at the 1932 exposition. Also at the Governor's suggestion the directors will prepare a special farm program for the day.

With the opening recently of the second county work camp on Figueroa Mountain, near Santa Barbara, another twenty-five men with dependents have been put to work by the unemployment bureau at $1 a day and board. Plans are under way to open at least two more camps.

Appointment of Dr. James Bird Cutter, former assistant chief surgeon in the Los Angeles hospital of the Santa Fe Railroad, as superintendent of Pacific Colony at Spadra to succeed Dr. Carol Cronin, was announced by Dr. J. M. Toner, Director of Institutions.

California war veterans are planning a movement to place another $20,000,000 veterans' farm and home purchase bond act on the election ballot this year, Governor Rolph revealed. The Governor said he had been asked to meet with representatives of former service men's groups to discuss the proposition and said he would do so.

Evidence of a "venison bootlegging" ring was uncovered by game wardens with the arrest at Live Oak of Charles Battrell, a farmer, in whose possession were discovered the hides of seven fawns as well as the meat of older deer. Officers charge that deer meat is being taken to Sacramento, Marysville, Chico and other Sacramento Valley cities and sold to a select list of customers at 10 cents a pound.

Mrs. Ida MacKraile of Woodlake, who has gained recognition as a vineyardist, has been appointed farm manager of the new State penal institution for women near Tehachapi, according to announcement. For fifty years Mrs. MacKraile has operated a vineyard in this section. In her new position she will have charge of women prisoners who are assigned to outdoor activities.

California's growth as the aviation center of the United States is being speeded by the fact that aircraft manufacturers are beginning to locate their plants in this State. This was revealed recently by R. E. Fisher, chairman of the aeronautical committee of the California State Chamber of Commerce, in a statement declaring that the aviation industry now has a $10,000,000 annual payroll in this State.

With a view to providing for a more thorough administration of the law, State Director of Finance Rolland A. Vandegrift has launched a survey of the State franchise tax division. Vandegrift expects a 25 per cent decrease in revenues from the franchise tax during the present biennium, due to the falling off of business. The tax is levied on the net income of banks and business corporations.

Damage wrought to the Tulare Lake basin grain fields by large flocks of horned larks from the plateau district of Nevada and Utah was the subject of an investigating trip made recently to the grain area by S. E. Piper and Johnson A. Teff of the biological service of the United States Department of Agriculture. The two Federal men were accompanied by L. O. Haupt, Kings county agricultural commissioner.

Organization of a new political group to be called the American People's party was begun at Sacramento recently, when Hjalmar Rutzebeck, rancher of Paradise, Butte county, addressed 100 persons in the City Plaza. Rutzebeck was named secretary and E. J. Hopkins of North Sacramento, chairman pro tem. The temporary platform emphasized need of social, financial and political changes corresponding to changes in industry.

Four of the seven sites under consideration by State authorities as a possible location for the Southern California Hospital for the Insane are in Ventura county, it was reported recently. Dr. J. M. Toner, State Director of Institutions, indicated it would take about thirty days before a decision could be reached.

Damage to the construction of the new jetty at the mouth of Russian River at Jenner was estimated by Deputy State Engineer Jones, in charge of the work, at between $7,000 and $10,000.

Records compiled by the State Department of Social Welfare show there are 19,907 men, women, boys and girls on probation in California, in addition to 7000 men and women who are confined in prison. The classification of those on probation follows: Men, 8,328; women, 555; boys, 7448; girls, 3576.

A total of 2800 war veterans for whom the State is financing purchases of homes and farms are behind in their payments, with delinquency totaling $305,135, George M. Stout, secretary of the Veterans' Welfare Board, said recently. "The rapid increase in the number of veterans defaulting in their monthly payments is creating critical as well as an alarming situation," Stout declared. The veterans in arrears constitute 28 per cent of all the contract holders.

Reflecting a healthy condition in the automobile business in California, fee-paid motor vehicle registrations for the year totaled 2,107,275, an increase over 1930 of 7982, it was announced by Russell Bevans, State Registrar of Motor Vehicles. The figures of 2,107,275 includes motorcycles and trailers, but does not include the 38,199 vehicles registered in the State under the exempt license classification nor the 101,554 cars that were driven into the State during the year by non-residents.

New records in rehabilitating inmates of State mental hospitals are reported by Dr. J. M. Toner, head of the Department of Institutions. Dr. Toner reported that 50 per cent of the patients of the Patton Hospital have been discharged as either actually cured or improved to such an extent that they may return and take an active part in everyday community life. California has the largest insane population in its history, he said. Contributing to the increase, he said, are alcoholism and economic conditions and other changing phases of society. The population of the State's six mental hospitals on January 1 was 16,202.

Game wardens have been detailed by the State Division of Fish and Game to patrol the wild duck refuges in the vicinity of Salton Sea, to protect the wild fowl from irate ranchers who have begun a "shot-gun rebellion" because of the asserted ravages of the birds in their fields. The thirty-day open season on ducks closed December 15 and wardens may arrest persons found shooting the game birds. In the meantime, the United States Biological Survey and the State Division of Fish and Game are co-operating in an investigation of the situation in an effort to prevent depredations in valley crops.

The Sharkey oil conservation bill will be submitted to a statewide referendum on May 3, the date of the presidential primaries, Governor Rolph has announced. At the same time, a referendum will be held on the bill of Assemblyman Bert Snyder, of Santa Cruz, prohibiting the state director of finance from leasing state-owned tidelands for oil drilling. The Sharkey bill was sponsored by the major oil companies of California, and passed by the last legislature. It provides for conservation of the state's oil resources, chiefly by setting up an Oil Commission, with power to put into effect a pro ration program limiting production.

One of the most important innovations at the Norwalk State Hospital is the training classes for employees just established by Dr. J. M. Toner, Director of State Institutions. Such a radical difference in the treatment of mental cases has developed within the last twenty years, that there is a growing need of special fitness and training for those entrusted with the care of the mentally unfit, Dr. Edwin Wayt, superintendent of the Norwalk institution, said. He added that the special training provides workers with an opportunity to keep in touch with advanced thought and methods in the psychology, right environment, atmosphere and proper care of patients. Each semi-weekly program will include a lecture by a member of the State hospital staff.

Creation of a national monument for protection of the Putt Boyden caves in Kings Canyon is being sought by the San Joaquin Valley Council of the California State Chamber of Commerce, in a resolution submitted to the Federal administration through Frank P. Cunningham of Porterville, supervisor of the Sequoia National Forest, in whose jurisdiction the caves are located. Support of local chambers in this region will be enlisted in an effort to protect the caves against vandalism. The breaking up of stalactites and stalagmites in the caves is reported to be increasing with extension of the State highway and the resulting increase in travel into the area. The proposal for protection was initiated jointly by the highway committee of the valley council and by the conservation committee, of which Ernest G. Dudley of Exeter is chairman and O. P. Brownlow of Visalia is a member.

The State Department of Institutions announced the appointment of P. A. Libby, of the Los Angeles city school system, as director of education at the Whittier State School for Boys.

The State Bar Association has announced that hereafter applicants seeking admission to the bar of California upon prior admissions in other States will be required to show sufficient knowledge of the substantive and procedural law of California to qualify them to practice here.

AN AMERICAN OASIS

Sunset on the Desert Palms

Palm Canyon

MENTION the word "oasis" and it conjures up in the mind thoughts of the Sahara desert in Africa, thoughts of a cluster of palms sheltering a bubbling spring, a place of coolness in a region of blinding heat, an exotic and romantic spot in a country ruled over by a picturesque sheik. So it is something of a surprise to learn that there is a genuine oasis in the United States, a scenic spot in our land of many natural wonders that is unique in the New world and that cannot be duplicated except in the Old.

That is the oasis of Palm Springs on the edge of the colorful Coachella valley in Southern California. Around it stretches the Colorado desert with its ever-shifting sand dunes, enticing mirages, delicate wild flowers, and unique plant life. Throughout the year the sun drenches the land with its warm rays. Directly in back of the village rise the precipitous walls of the mighty San Jacinto mountains, reaching skyward to a height of almost two miles, and here is where the miracle exists. The peaks of the San Jacintos are covered with snow almost the year 'round. One may stand in the village and gaze on engaging panoramas of desert scenery, feel the vibrant rays of the sun turning his skin to a nut-brown hue, and then look upward to see a mountain covered with snow, appearing almost close enough to touch in the clear desert air.

The desert is a colorful rainbow-like place, dominated by vivid purple hues. When sunset creeps over the sandy-land there is no more beautiful sight in all the world, the sands aglow with varied tints which blend gracefully into the lengthening shadows.

One of the wonder spots of Palm Springs is Palm canyon, whose yawning mouth forms a beautiful "back-door" for the village. Palm canyon is a winding gorge lined on both sides with tall, graceful palms. These palms, native of this locality, are of the Washington Filifera variety, and their origin will probably be forever a mystery. Eminent scientists believe that they date from a previous geologic age as these are the only palms indigenous to the United States. The canyon is filled with thousands of these desert sentinels which rise to surprising heights and extend many miles up the canyon.

Through this grove of stately palms flows a cool, murmuring stream, bearing out the old Arabian proverb that, "A palm shall grow with its feet in water and its head in the fiery furnace of heaven." It is expected that the entrance of this canyon, together with portions of Murray and Andreas canyons, will be made into a national monument, preserving for posterity the virgin splendor of this sub-tropical wonderland. This is but one of the picturesque canyons in this vicinity. The place abounds in beautiful back-country ravines, each with its different scenic attractions and legends that have come down through the ages from the ancestors of the Cahulla Indians.

Andreas canyon, named after a chieftain of the tribe that inhabited this region in earliest days, still contains relics of forgotten times. It, like Palm canyon, is the home of many gorgeous palms.

One would not expect to find a coral reef in this desert land, but such is the name of a mountain wall on the southwestern side of the valley. There is no real coral deposit here, of course, but the vanishing water of an ancient sea left a quantity of calcium carbonate closely resembling coral, and so the queer appellation was bestowed on the place.

The Devil's Garden is an aptly named mesa a short distance from the village. Here is to be found a concentrated growth of all varieties of cacti, including the plump barrel cacti, those water-filled life savers of the deserts, whose value the government has set at $25 per cactus.

Theatergoers, the world over, have thrilled to the sight of a romantic desert chieftain charging over a dune on his trusty-dusty mount. As depicted in the films these dunes look for all the world like the sands of the Sahara, which they represent. The ever-shifting sand dunes near Palm Springs have been the background for many a desert cinema production. The great masses of sand with their wind-ruffled furrows are a memorable sight to see.

Tahquitz canyon, named for the evil spirit of the Cahulla Indians, has many interesting geological formations. A short distance up the canyon a beautiful waterfall tumbles down. To the weary traveler just off the desert this cool spray of water appears like a mirage.

Other notable spots of interest around Palm Springs are Whitewater canyon, the Vandeventer trail, Two-Bunch Palms, Thousand Palm canyon, Snow Creek canyon, Seven Palms, Painted canyon, Murray canyon, Mission Creek canyon, Magnesia Spring canyon, the Garnet Hills and Hidden Spring canyon.

The Salton sea, one of the queerest of nature's pranks, is located at the south end of the

Tahquitz Falls

Coachella valley. A great inland sea, it is the lowest body of water in the United States, and is 287 feet below sea level. It was formed by overflow of the Colorado river and is now a fisherman's and fowl hunter's paradise. Its buoyant surface permits many unusual aquatic feats.

But the unique location of Palm Springs does not begin to tell the story of this fascinating land of rare allurements, this enchanting village, which, in the past decade, has been aroused from the doldrums of a sleepy watering place to the position of America's foremost desert resort.

The history of Palm Springs does not go back to antiquity. In fact the village is comparatively new. It is believed that the Indians of the Southwest camped around the warm springs in the days before the era of the white man.

To Capt. Juan Bautista de Anza probably goes the honor of being the first white man to visit Palm Springs. This valiant Spanish Conquistador led an overland expedition from Sonora, Mexico, to the coast of California in 1774. However, it was not until 1853 that any definite government survey was made of this region. In that year a party under Lieutenant Williamson made a survey of the Coachella valley and Palm Springs.

Actual settlements were not made until during the early 80s, coincident with the opening of regular traffic on the Southern Pacific lines. To Doctor Murray, one of the early settlers, goes the credit of establishing the first hotel at Palm Springs. Situated opposite the present site of the Desert Inn, it attracted many visitors, though it is now vanished.

The year 1909 saw the opening of a tiny wayside inn by Mrs. Nellie Coffman. From this modest beginning was destined to grow the world-famous Desert Inn. Palm Springs became known as an ideal place for rest and relaxation, and gradually through the years has grown to its present position as America's foremost desert resort. Now, there are three other fine hotels with the highest type of American plan accommodations. The Oasis, the El Mirador and the Deep Well Guest ranch complete the Palm Springs hotel foursome. The El Mirador, the last of the quartet to be erected, is a colorful gem of Moorish architecture. From its tower, which rears itself skyward like a desert sentinel, one may obtain a most commanding and inspiring view of the desert.

The development of Palm Springs from a sleepy little village to its present position as "America's foremost desert resort" has been nothing short of phenomenal. Referred to as the "Village," it is perhaps the most interesting village in the world. From October until June, the fine hotels are the gathering places for the socially elite. During the winter season desert lovers the world over, leaving behind them the noise and bustle of the city, come to Palm Springs for relaxation, comfortable, informal atmosphere and healthful climate.

The success of any resort is predicated upon three things, scenery, climate and recreational facilities. Palm Springs may be said to be bountifully endowed with all, although it is the enchanting natural surroundings which gain for the oasis its wide-spread fame.

Predicate number two in the success of a resort is a climate. There is scarcely a spot in the United States where the honey-laden words describing Southern California's climate, as broadcast to the winds by the zealous chambers of commerce, have not penetrated. Southern California's perennial sunshine is an accepted fact.

The average noonday temperature at Palm Springs is 81 degrees. The average night temperature is 45. These two figures readily tell the story of the resort's climate: an ever-present sun that tans, yet not so torrid as to blister, a benevolent sun that drenches this magic land with its golden rays. Sunset on the desert is truly a magnificent sight to behold. The warm sun slowly fades behind Mount San Jacinto... vivid rainbow-like colors slant over the desert stretches... golden shafts of sunlight brighten the distant hills. As night comes on you watch the biggest of moons slowly rise from the ink-black depths of far mountain ranges, to cast a calm glow over the surrounding desert.

High overhead myriads of twinkling stars wink down... thousands upon thousands... more than you have ever seen. Fogs have never been known to visit the sheltered valley, and the average season's rainfall is only 3.22 inches.

Recreational facilities is the third item which enters into the making of a resort. All life at Palm Springs, is, of course, lived out-of-doors. There being such a wealth of scenery in the vicinity of the oasis, it is the natural thing for the visitor to "take in" as much as possible. Horseback riding is one of the favorite means of recreation although there are good motor roads to the principal points of interest. Strange to say, there are two regulation golf courses in this desert land, entirely grass-covered with sand traps as natural. Swimming in the open-air fresh water pools is another delight to Palm Springs visitors. Moonlight bathing has become one of the resort's most famous attractions. Tennis is also a favorite at the oasis.

The Indians add an interesting atmosphere to Palm Springs. The remnants of the desert tribe of the Cahullas live on a reservation just east of the village and are a contented and picturesque band. They are numbered among the Mission Indians and have long been Christianized. An Indian pageant is staged each year during November at the mouth of Tahquitz canyon. Against a majestic background of striking rock formations a dramatic story of Indian folklore is unfolded.

Although every modern convenience is available at Palm Springs, the village refuses to become civilized and retains a picturesque and charming rusticity. An informal atmosphere prevails, and the citizenry is of an easy-going, complacent, though not indolent, nature.

There has appeared frequently in this story the word "desert," and it is the natural impulse when one reads the word to think of barren, waste lands. Yet for certain types of agriculture, no more fertile spot exists in all the world than the desert of Palm Springs. India, 20 miles east of the village, is known throughout the United States as the home of the Deglet Noor date. Years ago the Southern Pacific line, which, by the way, is the only railroad line having a station at Palm Springs, after repeated failures elsewhere, planted the first of these palms in India, and they were found to bear fruit. Now there are thousands of acres of these date bearing palms. This locality is also famous for its luscious grapefruit, so rich in sugar content that it need not be sweetened.

TITLE INSURANCE AND GUARANTY COMPANY, a Corporation, Trustee,
By WALTER C. CLARK, Vice-President,

Sven H. Svenson, Attorney for Trustee,
Phelan Building, San Francisco, California.
Jan. 22, 29; Feb. 5, 12, 1932.

Miriam street, Daly City, recited a poem or a scenario composed by himself, entitled "The Spirits Pleading in Defence of the Unjust Prosecution of an Ancient Race." The scenario's place is in Spain, and the time during the Spanish Inquisition period. The characters are Three Spirits. The first Spirit, who is in charge of all the lands, valleys, groves and the hills, appears at the portals above and pleads as follows:

O, harken the groans of an ancient race,
And explain me why justice is none,
As torture and murder committed these days,
Yet in the name of their Right it is done.

Through valley and grove and the hills of the land,
As their curses thrill through the air,
The pious proclaim the right to command,
While the masses indulge in their share.

Those thousands yet struggling to hold on to their feet,
While they preach them their gospel their Maker to meet.

First Spirit steps aside and second Spirit, who is in charge of all the oceans steps forward and pleads as follows:

A message from under the oceans I hold,
That was written in humans' own blood;
A most hideous crime I came to unfold,
Just discovered from under the sod.
Just think of the remnants of a nation,
And yet God's own choice,
Pleading for mercy on top of their voice;

Mothers with infants blameless of tradition,
Yet mercilessly tortured by the Spanish inquisition.

Second Spirit steps aside and third Spirit, who is in charge of all the woods, steps forward and pleads as follows:

The woods that I were roaming those thousands of years
With your Nature's strong elements at hand,
Nothing could ever disturb me of fears

To uphold the right, and only rights to defend—
But when I encountered injustice, with might,
And the righteous too weak in defending their stand,

I call upon your great God of All-might

To uphold thy people in their distress and their plight,
That they may continue thy worship in thy blessed land,
And their unjust tormentors therefore thou disband.

All three Spirits now kneeling down in prayer and pray as follows:

We beseech you, oh God and King of the Universe,
Thy only omnipotence who dares to traverse

Heaven and earth, Thou didst create With man in thine image as moulded;

Forgive us our sins while we did so belated

In upholding Thy laws Thy servant Moses has unfolded.

The answer of the Invisible to the Spirits' pleading. A Voice:

Your pleading for justice on this outrage committed
To an ancient race that did no one harm,
Those cruel murders what caused your alarm,

While they were outnumbered and badly defeated;
As captives for torture they were told to rely,
And their only one God compelled to deny.

But endurance proved them to take no such slur,
And rather submitted those tortures of gore,
Dying at last with their groans of their pains,

Believing their offspring will replace them their gains;
And those remaining few of this ancient race
Have traveled fast with this earth in space—

Through centuries in silence, deep, For their bereft ones yet not to weep;

Nor to revenge those cruel deeds, But only to replant their seeds,
That would stand and endure Even tortures as of yore;

To uphold their balance and proclaim That God is one and forever will remain,
Those the limit would be reached, If with wisdom those words were preached,

And those that died with hopes of gain Would not bewail their dreams in vain.

BETTER BRAKES FOR THE BUS DEMANDED

The California Highway Patrol reminds owners of trucks and other commercial vehicles that a new section of the motor vehicle act will become effective August 14th of this year requiring such vehicles to have brakes that meet a higher standard of efficiency.

Under this section all commercial vehicles must have brakes that will enable the drivers to bring them to a complete stop within 37 feet when traveling at 20 miles per hour. The date upon which the section becomes effective was set purposely for August 14, 1932, by the Legislature to give truck owners time to have the necessary adjustments made.

At present, and until August 14th, commercial vehicles registered prior to August 14, 1929, may be operated if their brakes will stop them in 50 feet while traveling at a speed of 20 miles an hour. All passenger-carrying vehicles, however, must now be able to stop within 37 feet at 20 miles per hour.

Anticipating the change in the law, E. Raymond Cato, chief of the patrol, has authorized the officers of the patrol to give special attention to brakes on heavy duty trucks as a part of their regular work.

Believing it very important that such vehicles have good brakes, Chief Cato has ordered officers engaged in special break testing work to stop as many such trucks as possible and test them. This work will be carried on coincident to the regular brake testing work on passenger cars.

Reports prepared by the patrol show the highway patrolmen tested the brakes of 161,828 cars during 1931. Of these 148,801 were found to comply with the law and 13,027 were found defective.

THRIFT VERSUS IDLENESS

According to William Alexander, of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, all those who wish to aid in getting rid of the existing depression by advocating thrift will do well to turn to the twenty-fifth chapter of Matthew and re-read the Parable of the Talents. It will be remembered that the Master lent certain talents to three servants. Two of them put their talents to work. The third when questioned by the Master, said: "I was afraid and went and hid Thy talent in the earth. Lo, there Thou hast what is Thine." When the Master learned that His money had been idle, His indignation was aroused and He said, "Thou wicked and slothful servant," and turned his talent over to one of the others.

There are multitudes of people all over the United States who are afraid to invest in ordinary securities, and who are hoarding their money. Now everyone knows that one of the reasons for the continuance of the existing depression is that so much money is no longer in circulation.

Daniel Chester French, the eminent American sculptor who died a few weeks ago, received much praise for his consummate skill as an artist during his lifetime. One of the most sincere expressions of approval which ever greeted his work was given by a neighbor, who was not an art connoisseur, but who knew what a horse should look like. When French showed him an equestrian statue he had just finished, the neighbor said: "That's a fine horse, and it looks a good deal like a horse."

Mrs. J. Winsor, who is now in America with the International Sporting Club racquet team, is regarded in England as the best woman squash player in the world.

VIERLING KERSEY TALKS TO PARENTS

Mother and Dad night at Jefferson Union high school, on last Wednesday evening, was well attended by mothers and fathers from every section of the Jefferson Union high school district. Salada Beach and San Pedro as well as Visitation Valley—the three districts from which the parents had to travel farthest—were well represented.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Vierling Kersey, was the guest speaker of the evening and delivered a dynamic address which presented in a forceful manner the modern problems of education, not only from the point of view of school but of the home as well.

"We would not be satisfied to ride in automobiles ten years old," he said, "but many times we hear people saying that the educational system of twenty or thirty years ago was good enough for them and ought to be good enough for the boys and girls of today. They forget that an industrial revolution has taken place in the last twenty years, that the apprenticeship system of their time has practically disappeared, that the field of commercial operations is no longer localized but has become world wide, and that the responsibilities of United States citizenship have become greater as the sphere of influence of popular government has become practically world wide."

Mr. Kersey then pointed out how the home must co-operate with the school in carrying out the program of education which will meet the problems of the twentieth century.

"Too often we hear people saying that they want their children educated so that they may be able to avoid hard work," the speaker said. "These people forget that the purpose of education is to fit people to work more effectively. Work is not a curse; it is a blessing. Only he who performs work useful to the world can claim good standing as a member of society. All others are riding on the backs of their fellows; they are parasites."

"We must also get the right attitude towards law. In a democracy or a republic the voice of the people is supreme. It is incumbent upon every adult to set an example for the youth in the matter of law observance."

Mr. Kersey pointed out some of the ways in which parents could be of greatest help to their children. "Help them make the right friendships during high school years, for these will be the most lasting of all their friendships," he said. He also pointed out why it is necessary to help boys and girls choose a vocation. Unless this is done we often find aimless drifting among youth, and due to no fault of their own. "Too many young people aim at nothing in life and hit the mark," he said.

Education for leisure time is becoming recognized more and more as of vital importance. The speaker told of an interview he had in a large city office through which thousands of young men were placed in commercial and industrial positions. The manager told Mr. Kersey that one of the most important things for him to know about a boy was not so much what he was capable of doing at the present time as what he did in his spare moments. What a boy does during his leisure hours will determine more than anything else what he is going to be as a man, he said. So it is of the greatest importance that we educate our boys and girls in this respect as well as in direct preparation for the immediate work which they will find to do.

Mr. Kersey's address was listened to with rapt attention. He speaks not for gallery effect, but in order that his message may strike home to the parents, and produce lasting effects in the lives of the children. He believes in education as a means of solving our individual and social problems, and he speaks with a sincerity that comes from conviction of the truth of his message.

The program opened with two musical selections by the band, under the leadership of Mr. Harry Waters, followed by the school chorus, under the leadership of Miss Helen Burfield.

Principal James Ferguson then introduced Superintendent Kersey, who, he said, had come all the way from Los Angeles to take part in the Parents' night program.

After Mr. Kersey's address, short sessions of the daily program of the school were held. This gave the parents and teachers the opportunity of getting acquainted and talking over the problems of their children's work in the different departments of the school. Refreshments were served in the Senior room by a committee of the Parent-Teachers' Association. Mrs. McIsaac, president of the Association, was in charge and was assisted during the evening by Mrs. Truman Bentley, Mrs. James Ferguson, Mrs. Ella McKee, Mrs. Martin Johnson, and Mrs. Dowdell and Mrs. Johnson of Visitation Valley.

Mr. Truman Bentley, president of the Board of Trustees, was present during the evening and on behalf of the board as well as the faculty and parents, thanked Superintendent Kersey for his presence and the worthwhile message which he delivered.

pleasant reading and reveals the fact that Daly City is not only fortunate in the type of its legislators, but also in the character of its leading merchants. Our business men have apparently taken advantage of all opportunities, which they have adroitly turned to the benefit of consolidated business and their city. Their Association is a veritable Chamber of Commerce which so far appears to have overlooked no avenue of commercial advance. While they have not acted rashly or too ambitiously, they have never erred through conservatism or excess of caution. In many communities it is observable that certain merchants never emerge from the village spirit, but in Daly City our shrewd business men have generally been one step ahead of the procession. In certain instances buildings and stores have been constructed of such dimensions as to cause momentary doubt in the minds of the cautious as to their success. It has indeed been openly suggested that they were too pretentious for present day needs, but the march of events has confirmed the assurance of men who were not afraid to look ahead.

Every member of our present City Council has been closely identified with the successful work of the Daly City merchants and has taken an active part in the promotion of the schemes of the Association. Intelligent and sympathetic co-operation on the part of our city officials has made a great program possible. The continuance of our City Council as at present constituted is a guarantee of further progress. Good business

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

The 123rd anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth on February 12 recalls afresh the greatness of our first martyred President, whose memory is revered by North and South alike.

While it is futile to speculate concerning what might have been, it is safe to say that had Lincoln been permitted to live until the end of his second term, much of the bitterness engendered during reconstruction days would have been avoided. His attitude throughout the Civil War was summed in one single phrase of his second inaugural address: "With malice toward none; with charity for all."

Lincoln was opposed to slavery on principle, but his plan was to abolish it gradually, and compensate slave-owners as slaves were set free. He proposed such a plan as early as 1849 when a Congressman, and renewed the proposal as President in 1862, after the war had been in progress nearly a year. Congress passed a resolution offering the plan, but without result except in the District of Columbia.

Throughout the war Lincoln's chief aim was to preserve the Union intact, the slavery question being secondary in his mind, as was evidenced by his famous reply to Greeley wherein he said:

"My paramount object is to save the Union, and not either to save or destroy slavery. If I could save the Union without freeing any slave, I would do it; if I could save it by freeing all the slaves, I would do it; and if I could do it by freeing some and leaving others alone, I would also do that."

Now, after 70 years, there are few in any part of the United States who will not concede that a united nation

RACKETEER INSURANCE

Since the advent of the racketeers who collect tribute from small tradesmen, manufacturers and others through intimidation, a demand for insurance protection against the depredations of these crooks has been met by several insurance companies.

A writer in Popular Science tells of a clothing manufacturer in New York who insured his place against damage by racketeers, and collected the amount of his loss when thugs ruined several thousand dollars worth of garments by throwing a stench bomb containing chemicals which impregnated them with a smell that could not be eradicated.

It is said that between 500 and 600 other establishments have taken out similar policies. They evidently think it cheaper to buy this form of protection than to submit to the demands of the racketeers.

It would be interesting to know just how the actuaries figure out the premium rates for such insurance, but it seems that they can do it. In fact, they will insure against almost any kind of hazard, from catching cold to being kidnapped. It is said that some families insure against the arrival of twins. But racketeer insurance appears to be the latest innovation in this field.

without slavery is best. It is well for America and for the world that on February 12, 1809, such a man as Abraham Lincoln was born.

Being Leap Year, 1932 offers great opportunities to girls with steady jobs.

What we need is more confidence and fewer confidence men.

THE NATIONAL HORROR

During the year 1931 approximately 1,032,000 persons suffered from automobile accidents in the United States—34,400 being killed and 997,000 injured, half of the latter seriously.

Of those killed, 14,500, of 42 per cent, were pedestrians, of whom 2,500 met death while walking on rural highways and 12,000 on city streets. More than 297,000 pedestrians were injured.

Collisions of one automobile with another caused 8,570 deaths and 528,950 injuries. Collisions with trains and street cars accounted for about 1,900 deaths and 21,000 injuries. Striking fixed objects, such as telephone poles and trees, resulted in 4,150 deaths and 55,820 injuries, while running off the road and turning over caused approximately the same number of casualties.

Contrary to the belief of many, relatively few accidents can be blamed on new drivers, who, realizing their inexperience, are usually more careful. Women proved to be only one-fourth as dangerous as men, while persons over 50 years of age had comparatively few accidents when at the wheel. Boys under 20 were the most reckless of all, and took a terrible toll as a result of their folly.

Total fatalities for 1931 were 3.3 per cent greater than in 1930, and it is almost certain that 1932 will show a further increase. With few exceptions the accidents which bring these appalling results could be prevented by the use of ordinary care and common sense. But when so many drivers seem devoid of sense it appears that no amount of warning has any effect.

The pity is that careful and intelligent drivers and helpless passengers are so often the victims of thoughtless fools.

HOW MANY CAN BE FED?

As nearly as can be estimated, the population of the world reached 850 million in 1800 and in the century between that and 1900 it practically doubled. It is now about 1,750 million.

When it is considered that it took the human race possibly half a million years to reach 850 million and only 100 years to double that number the fact is significant. Looking into the future, it must be remembered that human life is being lengthened and preserved through better observance of the laws of health and the advancement of science; also, that if in the future wars can be reduced, still greater increases may be expected.

The question naturally arises, for how many people can the earth supply the necessary food? When, if ever, will famine become general, instead of occasional and local, as in the past and present?

So far, there is ample food in the world, if it could be distributed where it is needed. But right now hundreds of thousands in the Near East, in Russia, in India, in China and in many other parts of the world are dying, either directly or indirectly from lack of food.

In the past hundred years vast new areas of fertile land have been opened to cultivation, but famine still exists, partly through congestion of populations and partly through lack of transportation.

While this problem may not seriously affect America for many generations, at the present rate of increase in population it will only be a question of time until the food situation will be a grave one for the entire world, unless improved chemical means for sustaining life can be practically developed.

Probably the civic clubs of the distant future will be trying to get rid of the people, instead of boosting for bigger towns.

THE SILVER QUESTION

Bi-metallism, now being widely advocated after a long period in which it dropped from sight, is certainly not a principal to be adopted blindly. But it does seem worthy of intelligent analysis.

Writing in The Mining Journal, J. D. Fisher, an engineer of Colorado, advocates a silver and gold ratio of 20 to 1, and says that "no other single corrective step could be taken which could be as universally beneficial." If it were established, he believes, "international obligations could be paid, credits would be restored, and unemployment problems would solve themselves."

It is generally agreed that the depressed price of silver has been a vital factor in prolonging and intensifying, on an international scale, the general industrial depression. The purchasing power of whole peoples has been reduced to half or less of its former level—trade between nations is languishing and dying. If the rehabilitation of silver will help bring order out of chaos, the subject should have the most thorough consideration to determine its practicability.

Metal mining means so much to many of our states that legitimate and practical encouragement of it affects the very stability of our nation.

Self-lighting safety matches now available are ignited when withdrawn from their paper container.

HOME WORK SWINDLERS

Some time ago the Post Office Department issued a fraud order barring from the mails all matter addressed to or coming from several concerns which advertised for persons to address envelopes and mail circulars at home. A sample advertisement of one of these swindling concerns is as follows:

"Ladies wanting home work, any kind, spare time, inclose stamp. Eller Company V-296, Broadway, New York."

Those who replied to such advertisements were usually required to pay certain sums, from 50 cents to $3, for "directories," "outfits," or some similar equipment, before starting to work. Then the conditions under which the work was to be done were found to be such that few made any further effort to engage in it.

The swindlers made their money from the small sums sent for the "outfits," and from orders for worthless jewelry and the like. Hundreds of women in need of employment made sacrifices to send these small amounts, only to suffer disappointment through losing their money and failing to secure the remunerative work which they had been led to expect.

It is hard to imagine a more contemptible or more heartless swindling scheme than this, as it preys entirely upon the poor and unfortunate who can least afford to lose the money thus fraudulently obtained.

CURIOUS CUSTOMS

Among the peculiar customs which have influenced mankind, one of the most interesting, and often amusing, is that system of religious prohibitions known as taboo. This system attained its fullest and most complicated development among the native island inhabitants of Polynesia, from Hawaii to New Zealand, but its traces may be discovered in most parts of the world, even among supposedly civilized peoples.

The word "taboo" in its ordinary sense means set apart, or sacred, and the persons or things so set apart were usually designated by kings, chiefs and priests.

Certain periods of religious ceremonies were marked by strict taboos, during which all fires and lights were extinguished, no canoe was launched, no one bathed, no dog might bark, no pig grunt, no cock crow. The animals were caused to observe the taboo by having their mouths tied up.

In New Zealand the places where great chiefs had rested were taboo or sacred, and fences were placed around the spots, so no one might tread thereon.

It was believed that as a penalty for the violation of certain taboos the offender would swell up and die, but the priests were able to prevent such dire consequences by performing certain mystical ceremonies, for a suitable fee. Violations of a taboo were often punished by death, or at least by a sort of judicial robbery, whereby the unlucky violator was despoiled of all his property.

These are only a few of the innumerable strange customs associated with the taboo and its attendant superstitions. But if we will but look around us we may discover beliefs and customs in vogue today which are not far removed from those of the native Polynesians, so far as rationality is concerned.

EDUCATION OVER THE AIR

A fine example of the educational value of the radio is found in the second series of "Listen and Learn" lectures now being given under the auspices of the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education, over the National Broadcasting Company's network. Nationally known authorities on economics, psychology and other subjects are being heard.

The present series has proved that where there is a sincere desire, educators and broadcasters can get along without stepping on each other's toes, by sensible co-operation and organized effort.

The Council has received nearly 100,000 letters from listeners in all parts of the country who desire to learn of the forces now at work in the world.

ROSENWALD'S GIFTS

Although they do not rival the stupendous benefactions of Carnegie or Rockefeller, the gifts of the late Julius Rosenwald to education and other worthy causes are deserving of the highest recognition.

Since 1910, Mr. Rosenwald gave away more than $70,000,000, an amount four times as great as that left to his heirs. His gifts were bestowed without regard to nationality or religion. Himself a Jew, his outstanding contribution to human welfare was made to the education and social welfare of negroes, for whom he assisted in establishing more than 4,000 rural schools in the South, and twenty Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. buildings in fifteen cities.

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish institutions alike came within the scope of his even-handed philanthropy. His broad sympathies embraced all humanity, regardless of race, color or creed. His recent death at the age of 69 took from the world a great merchant prince, a great servant of mankind, a great soul, whose benefactions will serve generations yet unborn.

Hard luck story: Michigan woman killed her pet dog in an attempt to poison her husband.

It is said that most comedians labor under a great strain while they are on the stage. And so do their audiences.

Save Your Money

NOTICE

To the People of Daly City and Colma of a Big Reduction in Meat Prices this Friday and Saturday, at

Vogel Bros. Market

6386 Mission Street, Daly City

Three reasons why you can save from 20c to 30c on every dollar you spend in our market:

FIRST. We do business on a cash basis—No Charge Accounts—No Long Credits—No Losses. Our small profits bring us a big cash business and with the cash we buy much cheaper than others and we save every discount.

SECOND. Our long experience in business, combined with our large purchasing power for cash, and selling for cash, enables us to sell our high-grade meats for less.

THIRD. We make all our own Fancy Sugar Cured Hams, Bacon, Lard and Sausages, and thereby cut out the middleman's profit, which is also a big saving.

Following are only a few of our many Big Specials:

Mr. Ray Silicani spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gregante, of South San Francisco.

Miss Lorraine Gregoire was a dinner guest of Mrs. Nolan, of Bellevue avenue, one evening last week.

Mrs. Louis Torre, of Moltke street, who has been very ill during the past week, is slowly regaining her health.

The children of the R. S. Thornton school are busy making models of Abraham Lincoln's birthplace and cabin home this week.

Mrs. James J. Grondona and infant son James Leland returned home early part of this week from St. Luke's hospital in San Francisco.

A marriage license was issued in Redwood City one day last week to Henry E. Shields, Jr., 25, of San Francisco, and Mary Camenzind, 25, of Colma.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schwartz, of Price street, motored to Atherton last Sunday to visit with Mrs. Schwartz's brothers, Messrs. John and Charlie Tiedeman.

Mr. Raymon Silicani, of Werner avenue, who has been on the sick list during the past week, suffering from an attack of influenza, is now feeling much better.

Messrs. George Dennis and Louis Imperiali, accompanied by Misses Carmen Baldetta and Jen Sullivan, visited with Mr. and Mrs. John Garibaldi last Sunday.

Mrs. Christine Hume and daughter Yvonne, Mrs. Lorraine Wall, Mrs. Sylvia Fischer and daughter Sylvia were guests of Mrs. Marge Kennedy, of Crocker Tract, last Friday afternoon.

Misses Alma and Elizabeth Camenzind were guests of Marie Lagomarsino last Saturday evening. The evening was spent in playing cards, after which dainty refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. John Witt, Rudolph Witt and Miss Helen Schomer motored to Half Moon Bay last Sunday. In the evening they visited in Westwood Park with Mrs. Witt's sister, Mrs. Flannagan.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Martinelli entertained Misses Erma De Lucci, May Clamatori, Lorraine Gregoire and Marie Musante, and Messrs. Pat Bolentini and Freddie D'Olivio one evening last week.

Mrs. P. L. Peterson and children, Laurence, Dorothea and Milton, and Mrs. Colombo Benedetti and children, Bernice and Eleanor, motored to King's Mountain on Thursday of last week and enjoyed the snow sports there.

Many people are looking forward to a whist party to be given by Court St. Mary at Daly City, February 26. Mrs. Grace Baicigalupi and Mrs. Margaret Collins are chairmen, and will be assisted by a committee of eight.

The many friends of Mr. Frank Woods were shocked to hear that he was drowned as Muscle Rock last Friday. Mr. Wood was formerly part owner of the Perryman-Woods Associated oil station at School and Mission streets.

Last Tuesday afternoon Miss Mary Camenzind, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Camenzind, was quietly married to Mr. Henry Shields, Jr., at Holy Angels church. Mr. and Mrs. Shields will make their home in San Francisco.

The members of the Boys' Club of Colma are planning a hot dog supper for next Wednesday evening, February 17. A contest for new members is now in progress. The club is divided into two teams, and the team that turns in the most new members is to have a grand treat.

Last Saturday evening Mrs. Roy Clark (nee Ethel Johns) was the guest of honor at a surprise stork shower given at her home in Daly City by Mrs. Margaret Rose. The table was prettily decorated in pink and blue, with little buggies and boots as favors at each plate. Dainty refreshments were served later in the evening. Mrs. Clark received many dainty and pretty gifts. Those who took part in the affair were Mrs. Richard Johns, Mrs. Clark, Misses Dorothy and Jane Johns, Esther Durbin, Lillian Mengini, Lena Marshall, Evelyn Clark, Mrs. Margaret Rose, Mrs. Helen Valentino, Miss Tina and others. The boy friends and husbands joined the party later and a good time was reported by all present.

Considering the billions permanently invested across the Atlantic, it seems that European good will comes rather high—and worst of all we don't get any good will.

INTOXICATED DRIVER MAY LOSE LICENSE

Driving while intoxicated resulted in the revocation of the licenses of 779 drivers during 1931, or more than one-third of the total cancellations for all offenders.

This was announced Monday by E. Raymond Cato, Chief of the California Highway Patrol, who explained that his men made a special effort against this type of offender during the year.

A total of 1,775 licenses were revoked for all causes. Next to driving while drunk, failure to pay judgments involving negligence was the greatest contributing factor in revocations.

There were seventy-one revocations for reckless driving and forty-two for excessive speed.

Licenses were taken away from 183 minors at the request of parents and guardians. The department refused licenses to 115 applicants during the year for various reasons.

SHIPPING CALIFORNIA PEACHES TO GERMANY

Shipments of peaches in barrels to Germany last autumn, conducted as an experimental test by the State Bureau of Commerce, the California Canning Peach Growers, and the University of California, have proven distinctly encouraging, according to reports received by the analysis and research department of the Bank of America N. T. & S. A.

These experiments were undertaken in an effort to develop a market for surplus fruit of California, as the tariffs, and economic conditions in Germany make the market for canned fruit a limited one.

Due to high tariff and excessive cost, shipment of bulk fruit in sugar solutions, previously attempted, had proved unsatisfactory.

The present experimental method used other types of preserving solutions, including both formic and sulphurous acids.

It had been observed that certain continental companies held peaches, apricots and other fruits in these solutions for long periods before the final processing.

Accordingly, the three organizations shipped eighteen 50-gallon barrels of peaches to Germany in furtherance of the experimenting last autumn.

Commenting on the experiment, the analysis and research department of the bank states:

"The samples which arrived in Bremen were well preserved, but the fruit had cracked and softened somewhat. The consignee indicated that they were worth further processing as jam or marmalade, but not for canning."

"Samples held at the laboratory showed the same disintegration, indicating that the handling of the barrels was not the damaging factor. One sample which was in a weaker solution of sulphur dioxide proved to be of full color and free from disintegration."

"Further experiments with the weaker solution, which incidentally would be less expensive, are planned for next season with peaches, pears, apricots, prunes, and figs."

"According to the State Bureau of Commerce, there have been a large number of inquiries received from large foreign preserving and canning interests, concerning fruits packed in some such manner."

STATE TO CELEBRATE TWO ARBOR DAYS

California will celebrate two Arbor Days this year, according to plans announced at San Francisco by the Outdoor Christmas Tree Association of California.

The first Arbor Day will take place on February 22, as a part of the Nation's observances in commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the birthday of George Washington, while a second Arbor Day will be the customary one, set by the State Legislature for March 7, Luther Burbank's birthday, which has for the past three years been observed throughout California under the direction of the Outdoor Christmas Tree Association.

Through Clarence F. Pratt, President of the Outdoor Christmas Tree Association, an appeal is being made to all garden clubs, parent teacher groups, and other organizations to participate in one or both of the Arbor Day Fetes by planting living Christmas trees suitable for outdoor decoration in future years. This program will tie-in with the nation-wide appeal of the American Tree Association to plant 10,000,000 trees in honor of George Washington during 1932.

"Celebrations and pageants, however elaborate are soon forgotten," said Pratt yesterday, "but the tree is an enduring monument. Therefore the Outdoor Christmas Tree Association is advocating the planting of living Christmas trees on February 22, in honor of Washington, and on March 7, in honor of Luther Burbank, that we may have these growing symbols to remind us of these great men."

COMPARING PRESENT CARS WITH OLD ONES

It is astounding to one who studies motor car developments to note the values and costs of the cars of today as compared with those of past years.

"Compared with the present cars offered at $1,200 to $2,000, the cars used by our fathers and grandfathers were not only very crude in construction, but extremely high in price, says C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Company.

"The 1910 Buick had a 116-inch wheelbase, 32 horsepower 4-cylinder engine, cylinders cast in pairs, magneto and dry cell ignition, forced-feed lubrication, sliding gear transmission with cone clutch, with gear shift and emergency brake outside of the body," Mr. Churchill pointed out. "There was a glass 'storm front,' tubular bulb horn, gas headlights with carbide gas generator, oil tail light, internal expanding, external contracting brakes on rear wheels. On the dash was a starting switch. Passengers entered through a door in the rear of the tonneau.

"Compare this car with the 1932 Buick. The following are just a few of the things now enjoyed in the $1,955 product that could not be purchased ten years ago for $3,000.

"Eight-cylinder valve-in-head engine, built en bloc; Wizard Control, with automatic clutch, free wheeling and silent second synchro-mesh transmission; a ride regulator; oil temperature regulator; instrument panel, with all necessary instruments grouped at the left.

"Then there are rubber engine mountings, combined air cleaner and intake silencer, sealed motor, counter-weighted crankshaft with torsion balancer, oil filter, crankcase breather, dual carburetor, gasoline pump.

"Other modern wonders, viewed from the 1910 period, are the electric starter, four-wheel brakes, and the Buick positive action windshield wiper with vacuum pump."

DEER ARE MENACED BY HEAVY SNOWFALL

Snow blankets averaging five feet in thickness are menacing the food supply of many deer in the country around Quincy, Plumas county, and have caused game wardens of the Division of Fish and Game to resort to speedy, humane action.

Warden L. E. Mercer wired to the San Francisco office that about 500 deer are sorely in need of food in the vicinity of Sloat and Two Rivers and that he, with the assistance of sportsmen and farmers, is hauling sustenance to the stricken animals.

Mercer also said that the Division of Highways is offering every possible assistance by keeping the roads cleared of snow so that the feed trucks can reach points of vantage.

It is a pathetic sight, this starvation tragedy enacted by the forces of nature. For some unaccountable reason the weather gods see fit to take a toll of wild life every winter through the medium of freezing and starvation.

Game wardens say that deer seem to have little natural resistance when it comes to fighting snow banks. Endowed with small, sharp hoofs the animals sink deeply into the snow and struggle and fall easy prey to marauding carnivora or else die from exhaustion and starvation.

It falls to the fortunes of the game

NORTH CALIFORNIA HAS MOST TOURISTS

Motor tourist travel came into northern and central California from other states last year in such heavy volume as to give these sections of the state a major share of such traffic. This territory established a substantial lead over the southern part of the state in the volume of motor travel entering at the various border gateways, according to an analysis made by the highways bureau of the California State Automobile Association, using figures recently released by the State Department of Agriculture as a basis.

The influx of motor tourists, with all that it signified to California business, registered a distinct gain over the preceding year. The total number of "foreign" cars, those bearing license plates of other states, which were checked as they passed into the state through border stations of the Department of Agriculture, was 324,726.

As segregated by the Association Highways Bureau, the figures show that 171,123 cars, or 53 per cent, carrying 444,943 persons, entered through the gateways of northern and central California, while 153,594, or 47 per cent, carrying 399,344 persons, entered through the southern gateways.

Last year was the first time the records disclosed more motor tourist travel entering northern and central California than the southern part of the state.

Foreign cars entering California in 1931 showed an increase of 31,336, or 11 per cent, over 1930.

The volume of California cars returning to the state after trips to outside sections showed an even greater increase, amounting to 36.6 per cent over 1930.

Calculations by the Department of Agriculture show that an average of slightly less than two persons entered the state by automobile every minute throughout 1931. The average was 2.9 persons per minute during the peak summer travel season.

wardens to seek such tragedies and to bring every possible relief to the suffering animals. Fish and game officials declare that hundreds of game birds and animals are saved every year through the activities of the Bureau of Patrol.

Feeding operations are continued in all cases until the natural foods are bared by the melting snow.

SUPERVISORS PAY HOSPITAL BILLS

The San Mateo county board of supervisors last Monday decided to approve claims from private hospitals, totaling a substantial sum, for services to highway accident victims during the past two months, but not without much controversy, and despite the fact that Dr. A. L. Offield, county physician, had recommended that the bills be not approved.

The policy of the board of supervisors of paying hospital bills of highway accident victims is due to be abandoned after another month, however, and a new arrangement substituted for the county's twenty-four-hour ambulance and emergency treatment plan, it appeared following a heated discussion by members of the board.

Possible abuses of the present system to the point where it might easily become a serious county burden have been pointed out many times to the members of the board. It will remain in effect, however, for another month.

SAN BRUNO POST TO GIVE COLORFUL SHOW

The American Legion, San Bruno Post, No. 409, is arranging to present three nights of colorful entertainment entitled "Gold Rush Days," commencing March 31, in their American Legion Hall, located on the Highway at San Mateo avenue, opposite Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Special scenic effects will cover the walls, transforming the entire interior into a veritable mining camp of the Gold Rush period and decorated for a festival occasion. Many of the scenes will be copied from old prints of actual places in the Mother Lode country.

Many members and their friends will wear costumes of the period. Some have even volunteered to cultivate whiskers to furnish additional atmosphere for the occasion. Red shirted miners will rub elbows with silk hatted, tin horn gamblers. Trappers in fringed buckskin, Mexicans in silver braided velvet, Indians bedecked with beads and feathers, will strive for the prizes to be given to those wearing the most complete and authentic costumes of that period.

The features of entertainment will be in keeping with the surroundings, with a mixture of modern synecopation in the musical numbers.

This being the first major event produced by this Post, organized within the past year, no effort will be spared to make it one to be remembered by those attending.

COUNTY AUTOMOBILE SHOW TO BE HELD FEBRUARY 24-28

Announcement of the Burlingame-San Mateo Automobile Show—a metropolitan-type auto show to be held on the Peninsula—has just been made by the motor car dealers of San Mateo county, speaking through their show committee.

The event will be held February 24 to 28, inclusive, in the Auto Show building, at the corner of El Camino Real and Burlingame avenue. The principal features will be: Twenty-two makes of automobiles, all types and creations; a spring fashion show parade of living models; personal appearance of famous radio stars, offering their studio programs.

And these are but a few of the elaborate features planned for this show, the largest automobile exhibit in the history of the Peninsula.

The Auto Show committee will have the co-operation of the Burlingame Chamber of Commerce, and a portion of the proceeds will go for the relief of unemployment in San Mateo county.

PRESIDENT'S EDICT CALLS FOR FETE TO WASHINGTON

President Hoover has issued a proclamation setting aside the period from George Washington's birthday, February 22, to Thanksgiving day as a time of homage and respect for the memory of Washington. The proclamation follows:

"The happy opportunity has come to our generation to demonstrate our gratitude and our obligation to George Washington by fitting celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of his birth.

"To contemplate his unselfish devotion to duty, his courage, his patience, his genius, his statesmanship, and his accomplishments for his country and the world, refreshes the spirit, the wisdom and the patriotism of our people.

"Therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, acting in accord with the purposes of Congress, do invite all our people to organize themselves through every community and every association to do honor to the memory of Washington during the period from February 22 to Thanksgiving Day."

Perhaps it is fortunate that there is little sense in English pronunciation. Otherwise we might have such spellings as: Colonel, infonel, etolonel, diolonel; ache, mache, brache, tache, quache; pique, sique, mique, chique, etc. Not to mention rough, stough, pough and blough.

John F. Beedell, of Thorverton, England, refused to kiss the court Bible when called as a witness, declaring that it was "indecently dirty from long use."

Hair pulled from her head was exhibited by Miss Caroline Mailen, of Cincinnati, to prove her charge of assault against two women neighbors.

Peter Lugis, an Albanian giant visiting in Paris, has to sleep on the floor because no hotel bed is large enough for him.

"My face made me do it," said a note left by Miss Violet Brady, of Chicago, who committed suicide.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY

AUTOMATIC Gas Water Heaters now cost 50% less than in 1917... cost 40% less to operate thanks to Natural Gas

Terms as low as $4.85 down, $3.85 a month.

HERE is the greatest bargain, the greatest value in Automatic Gas Water Heaters! You can buy one for 50% LESS than you could in 1917. And Natural Gas has cut the operating cost about 40%. This, plus the reductions in gas rates during the last 10 years, makes a total saving in operating costs of more than 50%.

For a limited time, we are offering terms as low as $4.85 down and $3.85 a month, with a liberal trade-in allowance for your old non-automatic water heater or water-back.

Plenty of Automatic Hot Water dissolves dirt 2 to 20 times faster. That saves your energy with the clothes, dishes, and all your other household cleaning tasks.

With an Automatic Heater you do not wait for water to heat. You save time. Studies have been made which show that an Automatic Gas Water Heater saves 4 to 6 hours each week. These hours are yours for reading, shopping or entertaining.

Instant hot water soothes your nerves when you come home dusty and tired. It is a blessing to have a basinful or a tubful of hot water any time of the day or night. Just turn the faucet.

The Automatic Gas Water Heater puts a self-starter on your hot water service. It heats the water, stores it in its tank and shuts itself off. No gas is wasted keeping the water hot because the tank is insulated. Architects and builders are specifying automatics for all homes.

An automatic is not a luxury. It is a necessity for healthful, happy home life.

*According to our gas rates, Automatic Water Heating with Natural Gas saves the average consumer 40%.

PRECEDING EVENTS

Joe Barry, country youth in New York, ekes out a living as caretaker in a poor rooming house and accordion player in Louie Bertolini's restaurant. Lured by the open country, he spends a night in the fields, neglecting his duties. Next day Bertolini discharges him. A frequent visitor to Bertolini's offers him $10,000 to impersonate a "hooty" in trouble. It means a penitentiary sentence for Joe, and he hesitates. The man, "Martin," gives him $1,000 "on account." Next day Joe deposits $800 in country banks, giving his name as Joseph Bradley. A circus attracts him. Outside a tent he sees an accordion and is tempted to play it. A girl, Sue Dayton, niece of the owner, who admires the music, urges him to take a position with the circus. Joe says he must first return to New York "on business." He has decided to refuse "Martin's" offer. In his room four men accost him. Bewildered, Joe sees the men, who are detectives, find large amounts of money, a machine gun, and two revolvers. Next day, under arrest, Joe is identified by men who "ad seen him the night before near Newburgh, when two prohibition agents were killed and robbed. Joe is charged with their murder and robbery. The money found in his room being identified. He realizes "Martin's" object—to have him found guilty of the murders, executed, and the case closed.

There came a clicking sound; blue lights, running in long tubes, burst into a glare, changing the complexion of those who entered their range to a mottled, jaundiced hue. Pete Maxwell motioned, Joe Barry went dazedly forth. Some one caught his right hand and pressed it to a steel plate of cold, gummy ink, thence to paper. They took the print of his hand, then of his thumbs and fingers. Pete lit a cigarette.

"Don't think he's got a record," he said. "Didn't joint the parade." The fingerprint expert laughed. "Put a vic in a bull-pen and he'll pace every time," he said. Then he called to a man under the long, blue lights.

"Joe Barry, coming up." Again a record—always that record, always a book, thirsting for information. Joe faced the blue lights. A camera clicked. They turned him to a side position and again the shutter worked. They moved him over to another portion of the room, under more blue lights and stood him slouched, against a measuring post. Once more a camera took its record. Then he went back to his cell again; another impartial, disinterested move had been taken in the disposition of something that once had been a human being. There was little time for rest. Soon Pete Maxwell was waiting in the grilled cage again.

"Line-up time," said the fat man as he unlocked the cell.

Again on the move, Pete silent beside him. Again the stairway and offices and at last the elevator. Again a cage, where men waited and sweated and rubbed their lips. Then a guard called the name of Joe Barry and he moved forth to a big, pleasant room.

Detectives milled about in a roped enclosure before a movable rostrum and a movable stage with a back wall from which extended a battery of dazzling lights. Joe was shunted up the three little brass-bound steps leading to the stage. Merciless lights gleamed down upon him at short range, other and greater lights blazed from above; out there the milling figures blurred; he saw faces and forms distinctly as through yellow smoke. A man stood on the rostrum before him, with a sheaf of typewritten papers.

"Eight Squad, 274," he read, "Joe Barry, 24, Sixteenth street and Third avenue, United States, restaurant entertainer. Arrested by Detectives Chaven and Maxwell, Lane and Grossett. No criminal record. Complainant, People of the State of New York. Charged with violation of the Sullivan law and—"

Joe Barry reeled, his dull eyes turning glazedly to the merciless blaze of the lights above. For the impersonal voice of the inspector had continued: "Wanted at Orr's Mills for double homicide."

After that, his clicking teeth and the fact that he could obey commands were the only evidences that he gave of mental direction. He was told to walk, and he did, to and fro, continuing after the inspector had given the command to halt. He was made to talk, answering questions about his work and his whereabouts. And all the time, a sharp word, carrying with it the acrid odor of powder smoke, danced and tumbled over the furrows of his fevered brain: homicide—homicide—homicide—

Out of the room and down the elevator he went. Homicide. Into the cage and back to his cell.

They came for him again, and led him out once more, past more offices, past more places where typewriters clicked and countless men in black sleeve protectors came and went; Joe saw it all and saw nothing. Then they were all in a room again, about a table, and Pete Maxwell was questioning him anew. But Joe could only stare and say:

"I can't tell you. I don't know." Gradually, through the medium of examination, he learned the details of the accusation. During the wind and rain of that storm, a truck laden with Canadian contraband had slithered along a greasy road, while cutting across country to intercept it had been two members of the state police, one bearing in a pocket a roll of currency marked that night for use in a later case. There had been shots; one had punctured a rear tire; the truck had overturned and the driver had died. Then the insistent spurts of yellow-red had come from the vicious muzzle of a Thompson machine gun in the hands of the second rider; one trooper had dropped before the vicious spit of the Tomcat; then the other had crumpled and gone face downward in the mud. But when aid arrived, the pockets of the state police had been turned inside out, every mark of identification had been taken from the body of the dead driver, his hands crushed to defeat comparison of fingerprints and his features mutilated beyond chances of recognition. The "chopper," or machine gunner had disappeared. Joe was accused of being that man. But he could only gasp and say:

"I don't know anything about it! I don't know! I don't know!"

They came at him from three sides, the sheriff, Chaven and Maxwell. They asked swift questions, they asked slow ones, they pressed him, they gave him long pauses. Insistent, quietly, never threatening, they went back to the beginning. They asked him about this man Martin. They wanted his real name. They wanted to know how long they had known each other. They asked why he ever framed up such a story as that. Joe Barry rubbed at his throat. "I didn't frame it up! I've told you the truth. You won't believe me! I tell you, he was a man who came into the restaurant; that's all I know. Louie Bertolini can tell you that, or Fullhouse, the waiter."

"Yeh?" asked Pete Maxwell. "Maybe you'd like to see them. We've got them waiting outside."

Fullhouse and Louie were brought in, regarding the prisoner with a detached atmosphere of curiosity, as though they were seeing him for the first time. Louis spread his short arms.

"How should I know?" he inquired in answer to Maxwell's question. "I work in my office all night; I only come out to fire this loafer."

That strange, slow hate began to boil in Joe Barry anew, giving strength to the weakened beating of his heart. Then it was the turn of Fullhouse. "Sure, I saw a fellow sitting over in the corner. A short man. He wore glasses; kind of a light, sandy-haired man and bald."

"You're a liar!" Joe Barry screamed. Fullhouse shrugged his shoulders. "How'd I know what you wanted him to look like?" he asked. "Maybe we were looking at different people. That's the one I saw."

The haze closed in again; pierced by new questions as soon as Fullhouse and Louie were gone.

Pete hunched his chair closer to the table. He asked his every question over again, only to receive the same old, dull answers. Then he came to one which he evidently had been saving.

"Now sport you seemed a little touchy last night about one particular matter. Suppose we take it up again? Where were you all day yesterday?"

Joe sagged in his chair. He allowed his tired, sanded eyelids to close, and for once, the grisly things which he had faced all this horrible night and day dissipated. He saw the circus lot, the squat forms of the mud-colored tents, the banners flying in the afternoon breeze from the mast-heads atop the poles.

Then there was a glittering thing in his grasp, calling to him to play it. There was a girl, fair-haired and trim with slender strength, a girl with innate trust in the deepness of her blue eyes, the tantalizing hint of warm response upon her lips, the yellow sun creeping through the vagrant strands of her soft, blown hair, and creating there a golden radiance more precious than all the money in the world. She was his girl, whether he ever saw her again or not, his girl to love in memory and in sacred dreams, his girl of one day of happiness. One thing, at least, could remain with him behind bars, bright and fragrant and beautiful.

Joe Barry opened his eyes and centered them. His lips became crooked and ugly.

"Go to h—!" he said slowly. "All of you!"

Wales Land of Castles
Wales, long called the "British Tyrol" is also a great land of castles, and Harlech on the summit of its lofty rock, is one of its most famous. It is not far from Narmouth and about a mile from the little seashore town of Harlech. The well known battle song, "March of the Men of Harlech" occupies a high place in Welsh minstrelsy, and both song and castle have made it a rendezvous for tourists today, many of whom come for the golf links which are among the best in Wales. The castle was erected by Maelgwyn, prince of North Wales about 550 A. D., but on the site was a yet older castle. It was once occupied by Owen Glendower, ancestor of the Tudor kings, and Margaret of Anjou once found an asylum there. The song dates from the Wars of the Roses.

Wheat Brings $1.25 a Bushel Here

ECONOMISTS might be puzzled at seeing Charles Huffman (right), Kansas farmer, being handed a check for $125 for 100 bushels of wheat while other Kansas farmers are getting only 40 cents a bushel for the grain. John R. Reed, who is tendering the check, bought the wheat in accordance with the Pratt County Prosperity Wheat association's plan for boosting the price of wheat to $1.25 a bushel. The wheat was turned over to a bakery in Pritt, Kan., which promptly proceeded to make it into bread which sold for 10 cents a loaf, the prevailing price. The first loaf of the "$1.25 wheat" bread was presented to President Hoover.

MADE WITH BANANAS

ONLY rich flavored fruits will stand the chilling in frozen dishes without losing their flavor. The banana is one of these. It not only keeps its luscious flavor, but enhances the creaminess of any frozen dish.

The banana being rich in vitamin C it is another fruit to serve freely in various ways to keep healthful.

Fruit Ice Cream.

Rub three ripe bananas through a sieve, add the juice of three oranges, three lemons and two cups of sugar, a pinch of salt and one quart of thin cream. Freeze, after stirring until the sugar is well dissolved. Serve in sherbet glasses garnished with preserved orange peel.

Candle Salad.

This is such a dainty and pretty salad as well as nice to eat. It is not new, but may be welcome to those who have not served it. Arrange slices of pineapple (the canned) well drained, on a ruffled leaf of lettuce or a paper dolly-covered salad plate. In the center place a small banana, to fill the hole in the pineapple. This may be cut down to fit, having the pointed end of the fruit for the top of the candle. Top each with a small piece of candied cherry and place a thick mayonnaise over the candle to simulate wax.

Fruit Cup.

Dice bananas, pineapple, oranges and melon of any kind. Serve with a sauce, using lemon juice, with a bit of grated rind and sugar, to make a thin sirup. Cool and pour over the fruit. Serve well chilled, garnished with a sprig of mint or a bright cherry.

Banana Fritters.

Banana fritters are delicious morsels to serve as an entree with lemon sauce. Cut the bananas into two-inch slices, dip into the fritter batter and fry brown. Keep hot and serve with the lemon sauce made as usual. As a cream pie add a cupful of sliced banana to the filling after it is chilled, top with sweetened whipped cream and dot with bright jelly or finely minced preserved cherries.

CHILDREN'S STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

HOOTY THE OWL PROVES A FRIEND

Oh, honor a friend when a friend you need.
For then is a friend, a friend indeed.

SOMETIMES people act the part of friends without knowing it. It was that way with Hooty the Owl. He proved a friend to Peter Rabbit when Peter most needed friend, but he doesn't know it to this day. However, Peter doesn't forget, and he has a kindlier feeling for Hooty than ever he used to have. It is queer how things sometimes happen in this world. Hooty did for Peter the greatest thing that anyone can do for another; he saved Peter's life. Yes, sir, that is just what Hooty did. And this is the queer thing about it; he didn't try to do it. More than this, he didn't know that he did do it. He doesn't know it yet. But Peter knows it, and little Mrs. Peter knows it, for Peter told her all about it, and one other knows it—Shadow the Weasel.

You see it was this way: Peter had run until he felt as if he couldn't run another step. His feet felt too heavy to lift. He was so short of breath that he had a pain in his side, the same sort of pain that you sometimes have when you run very long and very hard. Worse still, his heart was thumping from fear and terror till it seemed as if it must burst, and not one little ray of hope did Peter have to give him courage. He knew that somewhere behind him, drawing nearer with every jump, was Shadow the Weasel, and that when Shadow should catch him, then—well, it was best not to think about what would happen then.

At last Peter felt that he just had to rest. He couldn't run another step. Right in front of him was a pile of snow-covered brush. He crawled under this, and there he squatted panting for breath, and with a terrible fear in his eyes, watching his back tracks for Shadow the Weasel. Now it just happened that Peter had no more than crawled under that pile of brush than Hooty the Owl came sailing over the Green Forest on silent wings, like a black shadow in the moonlight.

Close by the pile of brush under which Peter was hiding was a tall dead tree, and right on the top of this Hooty alighted and sat perfectly still and very straight. In fact he looked like a part of the tree itself. He meant to. It was one of Hooty's watch towers. He had arrived just too late to see Peter crawl under the brush, and he came so silently that Peter didn't hear him. Neither did Peter see him, for he was too intent on watching for Shadow to look up. So Peter didn't know that Hooty was anywhere near, and Hooty didn't know that Peter was anywhere about.

Peter had watched sharply, but had seen nothing, when suddenly Hooty swooped down right in front of where Peter was hiding. It was so sudden and unexpected that Peter swallowed his breath and almost choked. There was an angry spitting sound, and then Peter saw what looked like some of the snow itself bound off to one side. It was Shadow, and his coat was pure white. Again Hooty swooped and Shadow dodged. Then he turned and darted into a hole in a hollow log while Hooty went back to his watch tower. Then Peter sighed. It was a sigh of great relief. As long as Hooty sat there Shadow would not dare come out of his retreat in the hollow log, and that meant that he, Peter, would have time to rest and regain his breath. Hooty had saved his life for a while, anyway, for if he hadn't swooped at Shadow just when he did, and so prevented him from reaching the pile of brush, Peter would have been no more by this time. For the first time in all his life Peter felt kindly toward Hooty the Owl. Perhaps now he might get away after all.

VIEW of the new private yacht built at the Friedrich Krupp works in Kiel, Germany for an American yachting enthusiast. This four-masted bark with a sail spread of 3,300 square meters has an auxiliary Diesel-propeller engine in its hull, which is the largest ever built into a sea-going vessel. The power is supplied by four generators, each of which is coupled with an 800 horse-power oil motor.

Lee's Underground Munition Plant Is Found

ONE mile from the entrance of a huge cave near White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and 400 feet underground has been found a big ammunition plant used by Gen. Robert E. Lee when he was fighting the northern armies in that region in 1864-65. The saltpeter hoppers which the two men in this picture are inspecting are in perfect condition. It is believed the federal authorities never learned of the existence of this subterranean munitions factory.

ON THE FLOOR

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

Wide awake I seem to be,
Lying quiet, counting sheep,
Nothing seems to make me sleep,
Far from noises of the town,
In a bed as soft as down,
Yet I roll and toss about;

Then I think about the floor,
Where I slept in days of yore,
Where I used to slumber some
Night the company would come.
Then our house was much too small,
Few the beds, to hold them all,
And we children, with delight,
Slept upon the floor that night.

Blanket, pillow, these I find,
And, upon the floor reclined,
Fall asleep, and wake at three
Glad again a bed to see.
Sleep again, and waken lame,
Just as certain just the same
I'd have stayed awake till four
If I hadn't tried the floor.

FACE PROSPECT OF THREE ELECTIONS

It appears that San Mateo county is facing the unique procedure of having three separate elections all in one day and at the same time.

This was learned when the board of supervisors received the proclamation of Governor James Rolph, Jr., setting aside May 3 as the date for referendum on several state-wide projects passed by the last legislature.

The board was informed that on May 3 the presidential primary election also will be held, as will the election of freeholders to draft a new county charter. The supervisors already have expressed their willingness to call the freeholder election, and those sponsoring the charter say it will be held in connection with the presidential primary.

This will necessitate, County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman announces, the preparation of three distinct ballots and the use of three separate ballot boxes. The only thing that can be used in common will be the polling places and election officers. Mr. Hinman said the work of counting the ballots would probably be a tremendous job, because each election would have to be kept separate and distinct.

No one loves a quitter, but the acquitters seem to be fairly popular.

In Subject A

Distressed Professor: "Why don't you answer me?"

Frosh: "I did shake my head."

D. P.: "Well, do you expect me to hear it rattle way up here?"

Why not plan now to build a new home or remodel modernize your old one? Our plan service will be of real worth-while service to you, and we will gladly aid you in any way we can.

Sure Dope

Sweetie: "What is the cure for seasickness?"

Salty: "Give it up."

You can rent a house, but when you own it, it becomes a home.

How True Man is but a worm. He comes along, wriggles a little in the dust, and then some chicken gets him.

"Daddy, why is that man running up and down the smoking car with his mouth open?"

"My son, that is a Scotchman getting a free smoke."

The man who doesn't own his own home gets little credit for his opinion in his home town.

Piatt: "Make a sentence with paradise in it."

Kavanaugh: "I got a paradise that pay my rent."

Where, Oh, Where?

Officer: "You were making forty-five. I'll have to pinch you."

Martha: "Oh, if you must, please do it where it won't show."
